Parking Downtown: The Willingness to Walk a Block

Parking downtown does not need to be a challenge! Simply become familiar with all the available parking. To the right is a map of the available parking in the downtown district, which consists of over 1,000 parking spaces.

In fact, most will walk more than a block when parking in a box-store development, grocery store, or when visiting the Denver metropolitan area.

In an effort to meet parking expectations, we ask that all downtown business and property owners speak with their employees and ask that they park in noted lots on the map, to open up Main Street parking for business customers. This effort will certainly alleviate much of the frustration that some feel when visiting downtown.

In the coming year, the Downtown Initiative will be working with other City Divisions to increase the visibility of available parking in the downtown district. The Downtown Business Community encourages Brighton and surrounding communities to make downtown a destination.
